trenches	1917 Apr 6 cont		medium trench mortars fired on targets in the vicinity of the junction of CLUTCH and CYCLONE trenches. Both shoots apparently had good results. Vickers machine guns fired as usual during the night at intervals and also early this morning. Our Lewis guns were active at intervals. Last night two of our planes flew over the enemy's lines showing red and green lights with a white tail light. The enemy used searchlights and also apparently fired his machine guns at them. Last evening about 6 o'clock and at intervals during the evening our planes flew over the enemy's lines with very little attention paid to them, some a.a. guns fired but no machine guns, nor were there any enemy planes in sight. Today, however, while our machines patrolled, there was much a.a. firing, some machine gun firing, and one of our planes was brought down, about 10.30 a.m., in flames by a Hun machine, about S. 15.
